An assessment of the total glycogen content and energy charge of human skeletal muscle was made in 28 untrained volunteers before and after a 16-wk training program. Both total glycogen and glycogen-free adenosine triphosphate (ATP) content of skeletal muscle increased (p [Rectal cancer treatment]. The authors have analyzed retrospectively a large number of cases of rectal carcinoma treated at the Coloplasty Institute in order to assess the role of radiotherapy and/or chemotherapy in the management of the disease. They considered separately patients with low and high rectal tumors. The results they obtained suggest that radiotherapy and chemotherapy can improve the five years survival rate of patients with low rectal tumors, which is not possible to do in cases of high tumors. The use of both modalities is considered effective and the administration of both at the same time did not present any significant interference on the response rate and on the survival of patients. The semiconductor industry has experienced rapid growth due to continuous improvements in the integration density of various electronic components (i.e., transistors, diodes 82157476af
